In the Ukraine, Russia, the woman does all the courting. When she falls in love with a man she goes to his house and informs him of the state of her feelings. If he reciprocates

all is well, and the formal marriage is duty arranged. If, however, he is unwilling, she remains there, hoping to coax him to a better frame of mind. The poor fellow cannot treat her with the least discourtesy, nor has he the onsolation of being able to turn her out, as her friends in such a case would feel bound to avenge the insuit. His remedy, therefore, if determined not to marry her, is to leave his home and stay away as long as she is in it. On the 1sthmus of Darien either sex can do the courting, with the natural result that almost every one gets married. A similar practice to that in the Ukraine exists among the Zuni tribe of Indians. The woman does all the courting, and also controls the situation after marriage. To her belong all the children, and descent, including inheritance, is also on her side. The same custom prevalls among the Vigrees, a tribe in Cabul, and the Nairs of Malabar. Among the Garo race of Abssam, in Northeast India, it is not only the privilege but even the duty of the girl there to speak first.

Add the chocolate and flour enough to make a thin batter that will pour smooth. Bake carefully.

It has generally been considered that white foxskins were of the same mythical nature as chickens' teeth, but a Vancouver furrier was exhibiting a short time ago what he claimed were the pelts of five white foxes. The man is an expert naturalist, and has been dealing in furs in the Northwest for forty years. He says these are the first white foxes he ever heard of, but he is absolutely sure the pelts are genuine foxskins. The conformation has been carefully preserved, and the big brush is, of course, attached. The fur is snow white, spotless and beautifully soft. The furrier bought them from a seal hunter, who caught the foxes at the last station to the north of Eastern Siberia, several hundred miles north of Petropaulovsky.

Not Matched in Age.

Mahomet was only twenty-five when he married Kadyah, his first wife, who was fully forty. Anne Hathaway was seven years older than Shakespeare. Dr. Johnson's wife was double his age. 5he was just sixty as he turned the rounding point of thirty. Howard, the philanthropist, had a wife who was fifty two when her husband was but twenty-five. At the time of Jenny Lind's marriage her age was given as ten years the senior of Herr Goldschmidt.

A singularly happy marriage was that of he late Rose Terry Cooke, who died last Summer, deeply lamented by a comparatively young husband. Another charmingly felicitous marriage in the literary circle of talented New England women is that of Elizabeth Stuart Phelps. who is idelized by her young husband, the
